Time: 8:00 – 4:30

“Selection is more important than training.”

The Haberman Educational Foundation offers superintendents, principals, site-based teams and teacher leaders research-based strategies to select teachers and principals who will be unequivocally successful with students

No school can be better than its Principals

*For Two Decades, Dr. Haberman’s
Research Has Shown
That Principals Drive Student Achievement*

1. The effect of school leadership is greater than student ethnicity, family income, school attended by students, or class size.
2. All groups of students benefit from effective principals that guide student learning.

Principals Who Succeed Know How to Build Relationships

If a principal candidate does not understand how to build relationships with teachers, students and their school community, it doesn’t matter how much content knowledge, experience, or credential strength they may offer.

The Haberman Star Principal Interview selects individuals who can build relationships with teachers, students and their school community

The scenario-based interview assesses qualities like leadership, stakeholder focus, ability to translate theory into practice, commitment to student learning and fallibility. Each component reflects an effective school correlation.

Dr. Martin Haberman is author of the acclaimed Kappa Delta Pi publication, STAR Principals Serving Children in POVERTY. All training participants receive his book and the interview tools which help to identify excellent principals.
